

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A communication network system includes a mobile node and a plurality of fixed nodes. The mobile node is a node moving along a predetermined route, and the fixed node is a node to be fixed along the predetermined route. A packet signal is sent to a destination node by way of those mobile nodes and fixed nodes. In other words, a packet communication among the fixed nodes is carried out by way of the mobile node.